Soft skills

The experience I have gained with the various roles I have had throughout my career has given me a very well-rounded range of soft skills. All of these skills have helped me become a stronger front-end developer as I am:

- Able to communicate complex information in a clear and concise manner.
- Be an empathic team player who thrives on understanding and supporting others, fostering a collaborative work environment to achieve shared goals.
- Initiative and structured with attention to details.
- Adaptable to new situations and environments, and to be flexible in the face of change.
- Solution-oriented and able to understand user needs.
